TUESDAY, JANUARY 15, 1839.

CONGRESSIONAL.

Our correspondent's letter giving an account of the debate in the House on the 15th, on the motion for raising a Select Committee to inquire into the late defalcations, did not come to hand. In the debate Messrs Legare, Campbell, Wise, Hoffman, and Thomas took part and then Mr Prentiss and Mr Underwood followed in favor of a Committee by ballot, and they took a very wide range of remarks embracing the policy of the administration, &c. There was some attempt made to stir the question out, but great confusion arising about dark, the House adjourned, leaving the whole business where they found it.

Our correspondent in his letter of the 16th says

The speeches of Prentiss, Legare, and Hoffman, of yesterday, were certainly powerful efforts, and calculated to draw out at least on equal number of belligerents on the other side.

After an such discussion, you can hardly expect a very full report of what was said on this hackneyed topic. I shall only give you therefore, a single paragraph with regard to each of these speakers.

Fry "whole hog," anti-ballot, and excusatory of the administration. A speech for "Bunk" and "loosey" soft and sophistical. He attributed the defalcations to the bank and credit system, and to the want of law authorizing the President to cause examinations into the accounts of disbursing officers. The former of these objections certainly very preposterous, having been confuted ten times over. These defalcations had nothing to do with the Banks. As to the lack of law, the statute book is full of these regulations upon the President's duty.

Brides, bridegrooms, and brides to be, besides hosts of brides that would be. William Lloyd, the Apostle of Peace, Jordan Bennett, the Herald, the Spy in Washington, sitting at the feet of Mrs. Judge of the Supreme Court, Members of the House and their wives and daughters, distinguished and undistinguished, and indistinguishable, strong and citizens! What a mass, and what a mess! But what is it all about?

Mr. Clay of Kentucky is making his closing speech (for the session) on the Public Lands. He is answering Calhoun, who is going against this Bill as it stands, but has been arguing in favor of his half-in-half system, of ceding the lands, for half the proceeds, to the States in which they lie. The bill (graduation) is engrossed, and is on the third reading.

Mr. Clay took his usual view of this question. His opinions upon it have so often been set forth upon the floor of the Senate, that it can hardly be necessary for the present to recapitulate them.

Mr. Calhoun said something in reply to so much of Mr. Clay's speech, as related to his (Calhoun's) peculiar position on this subject.

Mr. Calhoun said a few words more in the course of which he emphatically declared, that he was not, and did not expect to be, an aspirant for any higher office than he now held. His ambition reached no higher than the faithful discharge of his Senatorial duties.

The Graduation Bill was then passed by the Senate, 27 to 22.

Returning to the House, I found Duncan still on the floor. He had been attempting to show that the majority of the office holders in the country were whigs! He then undertook to show that there had been more defalcations in all the administrations united, before Jackson's, than in Jackson's alone! 'Wonderful!' Then he went on to show that the 'federalists' and 'whigs' had been the only very great defalcators, the government had ever suffered from. First, he named the name of John Adams, the second President, as being accused of having appropriated some of the public money towards the purchase of a private carriage. He then named several others--almost all of whom were shown by different members on the floor rising to explain, to be labelled by such aspersions. Still the fellow went on, and ranted in the same vein, and with the same characteristic prodigality.

A more disgusting display was never made, before, on that floor, as the better part of both parties unite in averring. He concluded by recommending a general sweep of every man in office, not a Van Buren man, and a flourish in favor of the Sub-Treasury scheme, and against those 'swindling institutions' the banks!

As soon as he stopped, Petriken rose, and moved the Previous Question (cutting off by ballot.)

Mr. Cronne moved a call of the House.

Mr. Stanley asked Mr. Petriken to withdraw the motion for the P. Q. He consented, on condition he would renew it. Duncan had read a letter addressed to himself, by Woodbury, beginning "Dear Sir," giving him very free and full information about these defalcations, (in his own defence,) and Stanley commented upon the fact that all information sought by the opposition in that quarter had been refused. Stanley also put the "abolition" question home to Duncan, in very pungent order and drew Duncan out, in a flaming bravado, that the man who said he was an abolitionist is a slanderer, and the paper that contains such an assertion is a foul sheet of slander.

Stanley said that the gentleman had better wait till somebody accused him of being an abolitionist. But where is "THE LETTER?" I wish I had it here, to read to this house. It had been denounced as a Whig forgery, in North Carolina, it could not have come from a friend of Mr. Van Buren, a good democrat! Containing, as it does such hellish slanders against the South, and against the institutions of slavery.

A copy of this famous letter of Dr. Duncan having by this time been found, Mr. Stanley read that part of it relating to the institution of slavery with appropriate comments. And this is the true Blue, Regular, Whole Hog, Simon Pure, Democratic Protector of the South!

I never did see Duncan bluish before. But this was too much. He retreated to the sofa in the lobby, behind the Speaker's chair, and stood no further question on this delicate subject.

He also read some other abolition documents emanating from the pens of distinguished "democrats."

After a very severe "carrying of the war into Africa," on some other points, Stanley, as he promised, (though he should not go for the motion,) moved the Previous Question.

Mr. Wise moved a call of the House. Tellers were ordered, and the house decided that there should not be a call. Ayes 91, noes 90. The Chair voted in the negative and defeated the motion. Mr. Polk is never wanting to his "du ty," of course.

A motion to adjourn (5 o'clock,) was then made, and lost. Ayes 14, noes 193.

Another call of the house was then made, by Mr. Rice Garland (W.) Tellers were appointed. Ayes 99, noes 102. So the call was not ordered. (1 1/2 past 5 o'clock.)

Is the motion for the Previous Question seconded?

Tellers were appointed. Ayes 94, noes 118. So the Previous Question, (cutting off the amendment, "by ballot,") was not seconded.

A motion was then made to adjourn. Lost, by a tremendous acclamation.

Mr. Kennedy then took the floor. He looked upon this protracted investigation but as the supplanting of that of 1836, and it was to be regarded as a new trial.

of the administration of which the present is the assumed imitation. This was the great point. Mr. Stewart and Mr. B. were the Whigs. Mr. B. was a matter of no consequence. It was the mere trick of a politician, to mislead the pursuit after something more important.

After speaking a little while, Mr. K. gave way to a motion to adjourn, which, pending, Mr. K. said he would dispend with the rest of his intended remarks.

The amendment to the amendment was first in order; to insert "viva voce," instead of "by ballot."

The Chair decided that a majority can carry this amendment to the amendment, though it put in, it will require two-thirds to carry the resolution, because it will contravene a rule of the house, and to alter them it requires two-thirds.

Mr. Wise was of the opinion that it required a vote of two-thirds to vote the amendment into the resolution. He appealed from the Chair's decision.

Mr. Elmore thought that this was not the time to make a division.

Mr. Wise said, this is a proposition for an amendment to an amendment, I raise the question of order, that it cannot be put without a suspension of the rule of the house. He asked the yeas and nays.

Some debate took place on this appeal. Mr. W. withdrew his appeal.

Mr. Campbell modified his resolution (the original resolution,) as so to read "viva voce."

The Chair—that will make it requisite to have a vote of two-thirds to pass the resolution. Mr. Mann now moved to strike out "viva voce" and to insert "by ballot."

The yeas and nays being ordered, this motion prevailed by a vote of 113 yeas to 105 nays.

There was a desperate move to get in this amendment, so as to make it necessary to have two-thirds to carry the resolution.

Among the Nays, (in favor of the motion,) I choose the names following: Andrus, Deane, and Parrie, of Maine.

The resolution was passed, and the ballot was forthwith gone into, for the Committee of nine.

This was of course a long process. I left the house in the midst of the first ballot. Should any result be reached I will send it to you in a postscript.

Yours, &c.

The Editor of the Belfast Journal under the head of "important facts," does out his usual singing and stupidity about the balance of trade and the exchanges of the country. The report of the Secretary of the Treasury showing the imports and exports of the country is always seized upon by this voracious print as conclusive proof of our prosperity or adversity. We have no time to waste upon the stupidity or perverseness of the Journal editor, but cannot resist the impulse to show him the utter folly of his conclusions relative to the report of the Secretary.

I very much shipped from this country is entered upon the custom house books at its market value, and the cargoes imported at the same. Suppose now that Belfast is the country, and there is exported from there, Lumber and other articles to the amount of $28,000,468, and the imports of the same year amount to $40,989,468. The Journal would deduct the amount of exports from the imports, and show "balance of trade" against Belfast, of $12,989,000, and from the character of its articles on this subject, would conclude that distress and bankruptcy must follow.

But let us change the calculation and suppose the amount exported had been sunk in the ocean, and to keep soul and body together, they had imported $2,000,000 thus

Exports, $28,000,468
Imports, 2,000,000
Balance in favor of Belfast, $26,000,468

A money-making scheme truly!

The fact is, and the Journal with half an eye might see it, that the Report of the Secretary of Treasury of itself, in giving the "balance of trade" proves nothing as to the prosperity of the country. This subject has been harped upon so much, that we thought a little plain common sense might be beneficial to "Democratic Wales."

At a meeting of the citizens it was voted to authorize the Mayor to petition the Legislature to abolish the Municipal Court, and instead thereof, to constitute a Police Court, of one magistrate only who shall have exclusive jurisdiction in criminal and civil matters within the city, and whose salary shall not exceed $300.

FRANKFORT BANK.
The statement of the undersigned has been published in the Report of the Bank Commissioners in which some statements are therein made in relation to the standing of this Bank, on palpable erroneous and unfounded, as to impose upon the duty of disabusing the public mind, by the presentation of facts, to counteract the false impression, which the error and misrepresentation of these Bank Suffolk functionaries have made. To us or to the Institution under our charge it can avail nothing whether these false statements were the result of error or design on the part of the Bank Commissioners, for whether from error or from a settled and premeditated hostility towards all Banks in this State who dare to do business without causing themselves into the embraces of the Suffolk loan, there to do homage and pay tribute, the effect is the same, till truth shall disarm unfounded misrepresentation of the power to do harm. All the Banks in this State which keep their resources within their own vaults and redeem their bills at their own counters, the only place known to the laws of this State for their redemption, have been indiscriminately attacked in this report, and several of them, viz the Agricultural Bank at Brewer, and the Lafayette at Bangor, have already shown to the public that the representations of said Comtee are unfounded.

The Commissioners Report says "Within a month after the Frankfort Bank went into operation, the whole capital was withdrawn by its stockholders, some of whom took out at once the whole amount subscribed by them, and their names were added to a list amounting to one half the capital stock."

The above statement, which is the only one to any material extent in this report that attacks the standing of this Bank, we unhesitatingly pronounce to be untrue and broadest import to the untruthful and destitute of truth. In proving this false representation, James Crosby Esq. one of the Bank Commissioners, whom we all individually respect and esteem, shall find himself unpleasantly situated, he must charge it to his associate, William Willis Esq. of Portland by whom he has been most ingeniously overreached in said report.

Now to the facts from the records which cannot lie. The whole amount of loans by this Bank during the first month after its commencement was $37,205 65, $33,050 of which was loaned to stockholders, $4,750 to directors, the balance, $2,405 65 to individuals not interested in the Bank. To show that, Mr. Commissioner Willis, who carried the discount books out of the Banking room without the consent of any one of its officers and there to take down his minutes without seeking or asking for information from the officers of said Bank, could not have taken the second or even the third month of discounts to justify his unwarranted figuring, we present the result of discounts for the second and third months. Whole amount of notes and bills discounted the second month was $11,357 43, $3,330 of which to stockholders, $400 only to directors, and the balance $7,627 43 to individuals not interested in the Bank. Whole amount of notes and bills discounted the third month was $2,078 63, $2,450 of which to stockholders, $310 only to directors, and the balance, $30, $18 63, to individuals not interested in the Bank. Of the whole amount of notes and bills discounted to stockholders during the said first month, which the Commissioners say, "now he unpaid to an amount exceeding one half of the capital stock," only 120 of said notes of $250 each and which are as good as gold, remained in the Bank at the time of their examination as a part of the discounts for that month. Comment on such a presentation of facts, fully substantiated by the records of the Bank, and so fully and unanswerably refuting the statement of said Commissioners, would be superfluous to a discerning public. We can safely appeal to the business public on this river in confirmation of the fact that this Bank has invariably been one of the most liberal in its discounts to bus men not interested in the Bank, at all times of pecuniary distress and embarrassment. But had the amount thus erroneously represented by the Commissioners been actually loaned to the stockholders, would the public have been any the less safe? Most certainly not, if the stockholders were responsible men, and no Bank in Maine of the capital of this Bank can boast of a more responsible and unembarrassed list of stockholders, several of whom, individually, possess unnumbered property far exceeding in amount the bills which the Bank ever had in circulation at any one time.

For the last several months the whole discount of the Bank have been barely sufficient to accommodate the business men of this Village in the purchase and shipment of the surplus produce connected with their trade in this vicinity. Still, the Commissioners have labored to show that their is neither solid capital or business to justify the location of a Bank at this, the great winter depot of the Penobscot River.

The Commissioners Report sets down the directors' liabilities at the time of their examination at $25,200 08, this with such an explanation as was due from them to the Bank is correct, of this sum $11,525 was discounted on three notes, each containing three responsible names, and though considered as simply safe by the whole Board of Directors, yet having been discounted at the request of one of the directors, his guaranty was given thereon. The director was discharged from this guaranty the next day and the commissioners so notified, which then placed the Directors' liabilities as principals and sureties to $13,675 08, still no explanation appeared in their Report.

The Commissioners report further states that this Bank and two others have each made one discount, which, "by agreement of the parties, the certificate was not to be presented for payment until the paper discounted was paid," here the Commissioners are unfortunate again in arriving at the truth, this Bank has never made any discount with such agreement. To prevent the property of a valuable citizen from being sacrificed by a heartless creditor, we discounted a note for that citizen, the amount of which was deposited for a certain time without any reference whatever to the ultimate payment of the note, and the deposit was promptly paid, as required, by the depositor. Had the Commissioners sought of us information in relation to this transaction, rather than to have presented a statement resulting from the flatterings of their own imagination, it would have been freely given, for there is nothing in the transaction which we could wish or desire to conceal from the gaze of the world. On the contrary the former Commissioners commended the motive which impelled us thus to save the property of that individual from sacrifice. The Commissioners have presented in their table of figures the true state of this Bank as to its liabilities and resources at the time of their examination, and for this the only act of justice towards us in their Report, we tender to them our sincere thanks.

A reference to this table will show that the bills in circulation $1,192, and individual deposits $4,724 00, amounting in all to $59,900 00. Its resources $7,700 24, in specie, United States six per cent Treasury notes and bills of other Banks, and debts due to the Bank amounting to $21,980 12. On examination of the annual statement, the Secretary of State on the 24th of January, inst., has been seen that the bills in circulation, the public at that time were $24,220 07, and its resources were $24,600 76 in specie, United States six per cent Treasury notes and bills of other Banks, and debts due to the Bank $74,979 17. In this amount there is no doubtful debt, thus showing an extent of available resources equal to that of any Bank of similar capital in the State, and there is no contingency that can arise with its present responsible list of stockholders by which the holders of its bills should at any time be alarmed. The $7,130 22 at down in the return as due to other Banks, is more than provided for with good paper in their possession for collection.

During the suspension of specie payments by all the Banks, this Bank never refused to pay specie for its bills to any amount when wanted for business purposes. The Legislature of this State having recently sanctioned the redemption of bills at the place of their issue, by allowing to such Banks a further extension of fifteen days, and having been attacked in common with others as we fully believe for adhering to that mode of redemption, we have deemed it our duty to be thus particular in this exposition of the condition of this Bank. We are not in the least alarmed that the Bank, as well as others, are suffering from a ready to help upon any cause, either real or imaginary, to create panic and destroy individual confidence. We have only to add if after this frank and undisguised exposition of the condition of this Bank any individual holder of its bills has any apprehension whatever as to its solvency, we would advise him to invest himself of that uneasiness at once, by presenting them to the counter for redemption.
